

Nino's Portable Electronics Blog

By Nino Marchetti, About.com Guide to Portable Electronics

My Bio | My Blog | My Forum

Add to: iGoogle | My Yahoo! |  RSS

Timex showcases new outdoor tech watch

Wednesday February 4, 2009

The super watch, as some people call very feature laden digital arm pieces, is a category usually defined by devices geared towards outdoors people. The upcoming Timex Expedition WS4 Watch, priced around $200, certainly fits into that niche.

The Timex WS4, which will be available in a variety of colors, is definitely not a go out for the evening on the town kind of watch. What you do get though are a lot of features which will help you maximize your time outside. All information delivered via the built-in options displays upon the watch's LCD screen, which hosts a night-light function.

Features of the WS4 include weather forecasts with current temperature, a digital compass, a variety of alarms, graphic altitude and barometer, 100-hour timer and a water resistant design up to 50 meters. More details on this watch, due out this spring, should be available shortly on the Timex Web site.

via [Backpacking Light]